Our Mission

Pass It On Project is a Staten Island–based, volunteer-run nonprofit dedicated to supporting local families experiencing financial hardship. Our mission is to provide personalized, meaningful assistance that directly supports families in need, particularly during the holiday season.

By working closely with each family, we deliver both essential items and gifts that meet their specific needs, creating a meaningful and lasting impact within the Staten Island community.

Our Story

Pass It On Project was founded by a Staten Island resident after experiencing firsthand the challenges many local families face during the holiday season. What began as a personal commitment to give back has grown into a community-driven effort supporting families across Staten Island.

How We Help

Each family we support receives a personalized experience. Families provide detailed lists of their needs and wants, allowing us to deliver meaningful support tailored to each individual.

Personalized wish lists for each family member

- Essential items such as winter clothing and household goods
- Holiday gifts to bring joy and normalcy
- Direct, in-person delivery to families

How Families Are Identified

Families are referred through trusted sources including schools, homeless shelters, and community organizations across Staten Island. This ensures support reaches families in genuine need.

Volunteer-Run Organization

Pass It On Project operates entirely through volunteers, with no paid employees. This structure allows the organization to maximize the impact of every dollar raised.

Financial Transparency

In 2025, Pass It On Project raised a total of $20,573.16. Approximately 90% of funds were allocated directly to supporting families, with the remaining funds used for essential operational costs.

Administrative Costs Include:

- Liability insurance
- Payment processing fees
- Website hosting and software
- Basic operational expenses

Accountability & Trust

Pass It On Project is committed to transparency, accountability, and responsible stewardship of donations.

- Registered 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization
- Transparent financial reporting
- Compliance with IRS and NY State requirements

Community Impact
